IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our loved ones, our Mother, Mrs. T. Burge Moore who departed this life 13 years ago, Feb. 24, 1933, our Father, Mr. T. Burge Moore, Feb. 9, 1942.

Home is not home, for Mother and Father's not there
Angels have taken them
Out of our care.
They have gone to that land
so peaceful and fair.
Dad and Mom, the old home now
is broken
No voice the room
Their hearts will rest forever.
Are the hands that made our home

Dearest parents you have left us,
But the home you loved so well,
Still the same, we hope to meet you
And together we shall dwell.

Sweet their hearts in fond keeping,
Memories fondly shrine,
Then, O Master, let us have them
And love them as we did before.

Sadly missed by Children.

IN MEMORIAM

(Blocker) In loving memory of our wife, mother and grandmother, Ida V. Blocker, who died one year ago Feb. 28, 1945.

Let us think of her today,
Shedding sorrow, tears and pray,
For those who we cannot see,
We cannot forget she awaits us in eternity.

We think of you in silence,
We long for you each day,
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.

We often are heard sighing,
Often a tear is shed,
For how we could not save you,
Was all we could do.

Weep not we know that you have gone away,
But your grave you've given us
To watch and pray,
For your loss we miss you dearly,
Our hearts are sad and lone,
But we know you're not always
Sleeping in the tomb.

Sleep on dear mother, sleep in peace,
Your work is done,
Only waiting hands will call to meet
Your loved ones gone before.

Sleep on dear mother, we shall never forget you,
Your memory is dear as ever,
You were loved when you left us,
You are loved yet.

Sadly missed by children and grandchildren.

Jap Went Back; Now He's Sorry

American - Born Oriental Is Shocked by Conditions In Old Country.

OITA, JAPAN — Tom Satoshi Yoshiyama, who was born in the United States but didn't like it here and is in Japan at his own request, now is convinced he should have stayed in San Francisco.

In this dreary reception center in Japanese repatriates from the United States, the Pacific islands and Singapore he says disgustedly: "I never realized it was as bad as this country as it is. Please do me a favor and send a message to the Japanese in the United States who are thinking of coming to Japan. Tell them that I urge them to stay where they are."

Yoshiyama, who was born in Auburn, Calif., 27 years ago, was in the one-half year of being graduated from San Francisco State Teachers' college when war broke out. He was put in the Santa Anita camp.

Was 'Pushed Around.'

"I renounced my United States citizenship because I felt I was being pushed around," said Yoshiyama, who had visited Japan three times before the war. "I had always thought I should be on an equal with Caucasian fellows. I could not even use a public swimming pool in San Francisco.

Then when the war came I felt that democracy did not apply to me because of the way I was treated. But when it hit me hard, because I had always considered myself a good American. I had been a Boy Scout, future Farmer of America, basketball captain—then all of a sudden I was shunned."

Yoshiyama said he "does not feel bitter toward the United States and still is willing to co-operate." He regained his citizenship in December, 1943, and admitted, "I was convinced then that Japan would win the war. I just got mad at America, I guess.

Two Convinced Him.

Yoshiyama said he became convinced Japan had lost the war when he heard of the capture of Iwo. He asked why he realized Japan had lost when others still thought she was winning, he said, "Hell, I had common sense."

Yoshiyama was one of the bad boys of the Tule lake war relocation center and one of the ringleaders of disturbances there. He spent eight months in the stockade as a result. He's a busy now telling other Japanese the camp officials "stole food that belonged to the Japanese and were running a black market."

His biggest cause of discontent right now is that his bride of two years is in the United States. So many wives of diplomats have been returned to Japan. He complains there is no way to let her know he was arrived safely in Japan.
